

AUG -2 1924

©CIL 20458

THE LUCK O' THE FOOLISH

By Mack Sennett

Harry Hicks is a railroad man who has saved a little money so that when he receives an announcement that his uncle will give him an opportunity to start in business, Harry and his wife start for the "big city." He meets with a number of amusing adventures on the pullman but incidentally has his bank-roll stolen from him. At a stop enroute for the big city, a local sheriff with a dangerous bandit as captive boards the train and takes an adjacent seat to Harry. The sheriff, wishing to leave the car for a few moments playfully handcuffs the bandit to Harry and tells him to take care of him until he returns. When they reach the city Harry and his wife both seek jobs and Harry gets on the police force. His wife meanwhile has secured a position with a local milliner and one day while making a delivery to a swell home she discovers her husband's wallet in the lady's boudoir. She tells Harry and they scheme and secure later, the arrest of the thief and the return of the money.

This document is from the Library of Congress
“Motion Picture Copyright Descriptions Collection,
1912-1977”

Collections Summary:

The Motion Picture Copyright Descriptions Collection, Class L and Class M, consists of forms, abstracts, plot summaries, dialogue and continuity scripts, press kits, publicity and other material, submitted for the purpose of enabling descriptive cataloging for motion picture photoplays registered with the United States Copyright Office under Class L and Class M from 1912-1977.

Class L Finding Aid:

<https://hdl.loc.gov/loc.mbrsmi/eadmbrsmi.mi020004>

Class M Finding Aid:

<https://hdl.loc.gov/loc.mbrsmi/eadmbrsmi.mi021002>

National Audio-Visual Conservation Center
The Library of Congress